11.2.2017 to April 2017

Over the past five years, we presented the On View exhibitions, which drew continuously from Stalke Gallery's extensive collection built since 1987. For each exhibition, works from earlier presentations were selected and re-contextualized alongside both recent works and guest contributions. In this way, a living historical continuity was created, where works across time, generations, and artistic positions tin new constellations.

In this edition, we also introduced a new, younger artist, Aske Sigurd Kraul, shown here for the first time. The On View exhibitions unfolded across the front gallery, the central gallery, and the back gallery spaces, where works from the collection took on new meaning in conversation with the current selection
